2

Old Gurdwara Lal Khoohi (Haq Char Yaar)

Gurdwara Lal Khoo, also known as Gurdwara Lal Khoohi or Lal Khooh, is a historic Sikh shrine in Lahore, Pakistan, located near Mochi Gate. It is historically significant as the site where Guru Arjan Dev, the fifth Sikh Guru, was imprisoned and tortured by Mughal Emperor Jehangir in 1606. The name "Lal Khoo" translates to "Well of Blood," reflecting the site's dark history. Over time, the site was converted into a Muslim shrine, Hag Char Yaar, dedicated to the first four caliphs in Islam.

3

Gurdwara Janamasthan Bebe Nanki

Gurudwara Sri Bebe Nanaki Ji was constructed in 1970's to honour the memory of Bebe Nanaki, the elder sister of Sri Guru Nanak Dev Ji. Her historical abode, an ancient three-storied building where Bebe Nanaki is believed to have lived with her husband Jai Ram, is inside the old town of Mohalla Chhimbian.

7

Lahore Fort

Lahore Fort, locally known as Shahi Qila, is a monumental citadel situated in the heart of Lahore, Pakistan. Spanning over 20 hectares, this UNESCO World Heritage Site stands as a testament to the grandeur of the Mughal Empire, showcasing a rich tapestry of architectural and historical significance.

8

Badshahi Mosque

Badshahi Mosque, located in Lahore opposite the majestic Lahore Fort, was built between 1671–1673 under the patronage of the Mughal Emperor Aurangzeb . It stands as one of the finest examples of Indo-Islamic Mughal architecture—constructed with red sandstone and intricate marble inlay.

9

Gurdwara Nankana Sahib

Gurdwara Dera Sahib Lahore is a deeply significant Sikh shrine located in the Walled City of Lahore, near Badshahi Mosque and Lahore Fort. It commemorates the martyrdom of the Fifth Sikh Guru, Guru Arjan Dev (martyred May 30, 1606), who was tortured under orders from Emperor Jahangir and eventually drowned in the River Ravi nearby.

10

Shalamar Gardens

A crown jewel of Mughal landscape architecture, the Shalimar Gardens were built between 1641–42 by Emperor Shah Jahan, inspired by his father Jahangir's Kashmir garden. Spanning approximately 16 hectares (658?×?258?m), the gardens follow the Persian Charbagh design, laid out in three terraces—Farah Baksh, Faiz Baksh, and Hayat Baksh—each elevated ~4–5?m, symbolizing royal hierarchy.

11

Tomb of Buddhu

Buddhu's Tomb—locally known as Buddhu Da Awa ("?wa" means kiln)—is a 17th-century Mughal-era tomb located along the Grand Trunk Road, east of Lahore's Walled City, near the University of Engineering and Technology. Traditionally, it was believed to mark the kiln site of Buddhu, a prominent brick-maker whose bricks were used in royal projects during Shah Jahan's reign

12

Shrine of Hazrat Mian Mir (Bala Pir) RA

A revered 17th-century Sufi mausoleum honoring the Qadiri saint Mian?Mir (c.?1550–1635), located in the historic Dharampura area, ~3?km west of Lahore's Walled City.

28

H8JG+PHM

Delhi Gate is one of the six surviving historic gates of Lahore's Walled City, originally constructed during Emperor Akbar's reign in the mid-1600s and named for its orientation toward Delhi.

29

Masjid Wazir Khan

One of the most splendid Mughal-era mosques, the Wazir Khan Mosque was commissioned by Shah?Jahan's governor and physician Hakim Ilam-ud-din Ansari (Wazir Khan) in 1634, and completed in 1641, to enclose the tomb of Sufi saint Miran Badshah.

30

Shahi Hammam (Wazir Khan Hammam)

A jewel of Mughal-era architecture, the Shahi Hammam was built in 1635 by Hakim Ilam-ud-din Ansari—also known as Wazir Khan—with the intention of funding the nearby Wazir Khan Mosque through its public bath revenues.

31

Gurdwara Janam Asthan Guru Ram Das Ji

This sacred shrine marks the birthplace of the 4th Sikh Guru, Guru?Ram?Das (born 24 Sept 1534), located in Chuna?Mandi Bazaar within Lahore's Walled City.

Day 6 - Breakfast at the Hotel and Departure for Nankana Sahib

36

Nankana Sahib

A sacred city in Punjab, Nankana Sahib is revered as the birthplace of Guru Nanak Dev Ji, founder of Sikhism. Located about 91?km west of Lahore and 75?km east of Faisalabad, it hosts one of Sikhism's most important pilgrimage sites, centered around Gurdwara Janam Asthan (Nankana Sahib Gurdwara).

37

Sacha Sauda

A revered Sikh shrine marking a pivotal moment in Guru Nanak Dev Ji's early life, the Gurdwara commemorates the "True Bargain" – the Sacha Sauda – where a young Guru Nanak chose compassion over profit.
Langar at Gurdwara Sacha Sauda.

38

Gurudwara Kiara Sahib

Nestled about 1.5?km east of Gurdwara Janam Asthan, this peaceful shrine marks a miraculous childhood episode from the life of Guru Nanak Dev Ji. It commemorates the spot where, as a young shepherd, Nanak unintentionally allowed his cattle to graze in a farmer's field. After the farmer complained, both he and Rai?Bular inspected the damage—yet astonishingly found no harm. To confirm the miracle, Nanak guided the cattle home and then simply blessed the field, which turned greener than before.

39

Gurudwara Sri Guru Arjan Dev Ji Baba Mal Malri Sahib

Gurdwara Sri?Mal?Ji Sahib (also spelled Malji Sahib), is a historic shrine located in Kanganpur, Kasur District, Punjab, Pakistan—not to be confused with the one in Nankana Sahib.

40

Gurdwara Tambu Sahib

Gurdwara Tambu Sahib is a modest yet historically rich Sikh shrine located about 1?km east of Gurdwara Janam?Asthan in Nankana Sahib. It commemorates the moment when a young Guru Nanak Dev Ji, sent on a mission with Rs.?20 by his father, spent the money feeding sadhus and then hid under the wide-spreading branches of an old van (banyan) tree—forming a natural "tent" (tambu).

41

Gurudwara Bal Lila Sahib

Gurdwara Bal Lila Sahib is a charming and historically significant shrine located about 300–400?m southeast of Gurdwara Janam Asthan in Nankana Sahib. It commemorates the "Bal Lila" or childhood pastime of Guru Nanak Dev Ji, who, as a young boy, would gather friends here to play—and more importantly—impart seedings of spiritual wisdom during those simple moments of joy and innocence.

42

CMVX+QG2 Gurudwara Patti Sahib

Gurdwara Patti Sahib, also called Maulvi Patti Sahib, is a modest yet historically profound Sikh shrine—located midway between Gurdwara Janam Asthan and Bal?Lila Sahib in Nankana?Sahib. Its name refers to the traditional "patti", a wooden slate used for early education, and marks the place where young Guru Nanak Dev Ji received his first formal instruction in languages and the Gurmukhi alphabet under Maulvi Qutab-ud-Din and Pandit Brij?Lal.

43

Gurudwara Janam Asthan Nankana Sahib

A pivotal and sacred shrine in Sikhism, marking the birthplace (Janam Asthan) of Guru Nanak Dev Ji in 1469, located in Nankana Sahib, Punjab, Pakistan—approximately 65?km west of Lahore.
